GARFIELD WINS SOCCER CHAMPIONSHIP

WHAT'S WHAT IN SPORTS ALL THE TIME

CLEVELAND WRESTLING BOUT IS OF INTEREST TO LOCAL FANS

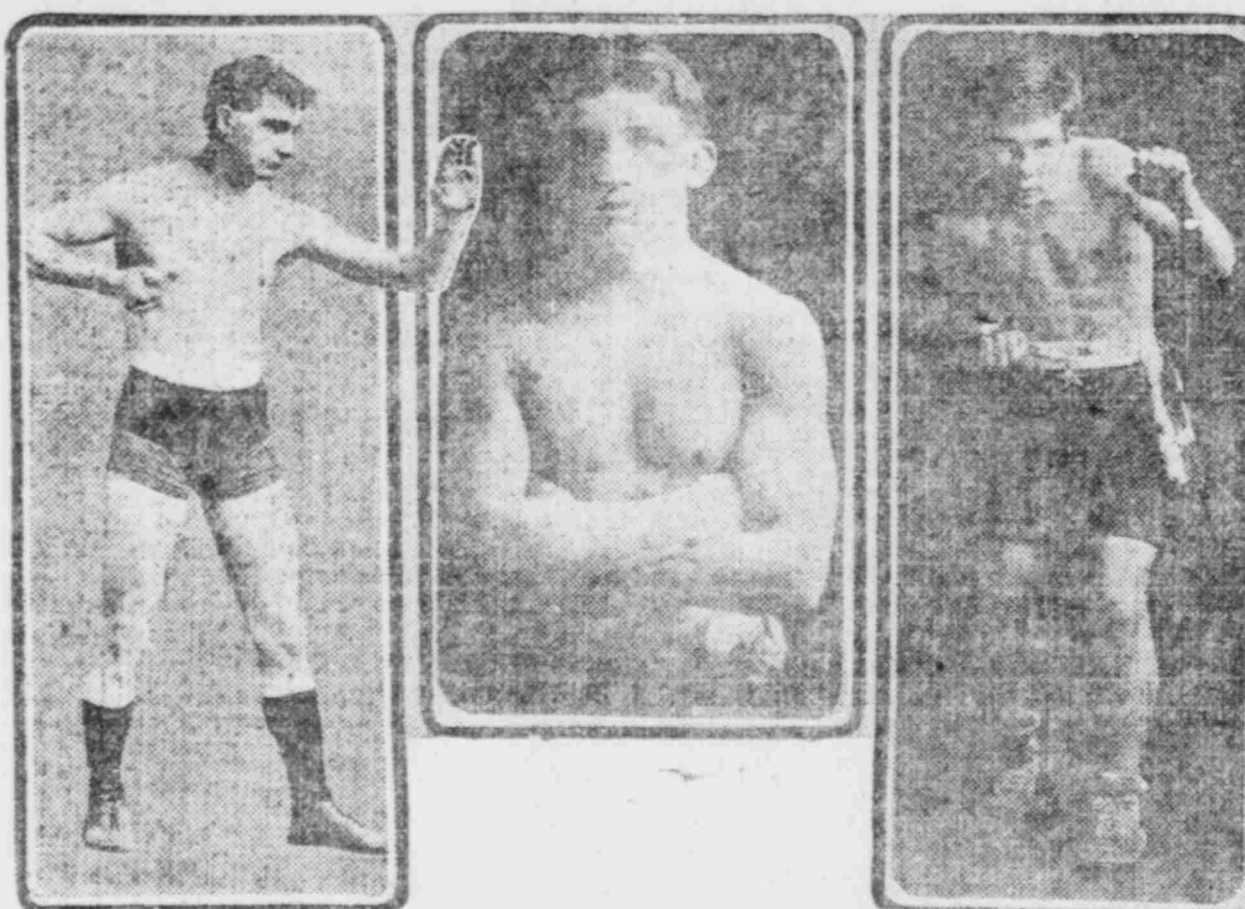

A WRESTLING match to be held in Cleveland Wednesday night will be followed with interest by hundreds of enthusiasts of the mat game in this city. The bout is between Henry Gehring and Walter Willoughby, and it will definitely settle the middleweight championship of the world. In view of the fact that Gehring is to wrestle Mike Yokoi January 25 in this city, the Cleveland match is doubly interesting. While hoping for victory for Gehring, Yokoi says that he is after the middleweight title, and if necessary will wrestle Willoughby if he wins from Gehring.

That Willoughby will be bothered in making weight is seen from the account of the match that appeared in the Cleveland Plain Dealer of December 28. If Willoughby makes 155 pounds ring-side and wins, there will be no dispute, but Gehring says he will not put his title at stake against a man out of the middleweight class, and he is right. The Plain Dealer says:

"In Henry Gehring and Walter Willoughby, Cleveland has the two greatest middleweight wrestlers in the country if not the entire world. For two years the question as to which was the other's superior has been in doubt. Gehring has claimed the middleweight championship ever since he defeated Dan McLeod at the Empire theatre two years ago. Willoughby has been frequently, but appeared unable to make the required weight, and Gehring refused to concede one ounce over the middleweight limit of 155 pounds. Consequently, although there were many arguments as to which was the better man, they never met in a championship bout. The nearest they did come to getting together to decide the title was when Willoughby took Gehring on in a handicap match, agreeing to throw the German twice in an hour. He failed to get a fall.

"Finally, seeing that Gehring would not make a match at anything above 155 pounds at all he was, Willoughby went to Chicago and there met all centers in a tournament which was conducted by the Empire A. C.

THREE YOUNG BOXERS WORTH WATCHING

GEORGE STEVENS.

JACK REDMAN.

KID STACKS.

THREE promising young fighters who are receiving much attention just now are Jack Redmond of Akron, Ohio, who was the cause of Ad Wolgast's fractured arm; George Stevens of Milwaukee, whom Langford declares to be the best little fighter he has seen in a long time, and Kid Stacks, who is going to New Orleans to take on any little fellow who wants to tackle him.

Down in Akron, Ohio, the other day, Phil Brock, a game little pugilist, was shadowed by Jack Redmond of Milwaukee, who was making the selection. It is expected, however, that Walter Kelly will be the choice of Willoughby and Gehring.

"It is to be a match to the finish, regardless of the number of hours that are required, for the articles of agreement specify that the bout shall continue until one or the other is declared the winner."

plished quite a trick, as the Cleveland Plain Dealer says, until he met Redmond, who was very successful. Jack Redmond is the cause of the broken arm forced upon Wolgast. It was in Milwaukee a few months back that Wolgast fought Redmond. The bout went ten rounds, but in the fourth round Wolgast blocked Redmond's swing with his wrist. He suffered a fractured bone, and has not fought since then.

With two good matches made and a few others in prospect, George Stevens, the featherweight, decided to turn out the first of the year in search of money and glory in the prize ring. Stevens has been doing most of his fighting throughout Wisconsin, and Minnesota, meeting all bids up to 124 pounds. Right from the east have reached him, and he will try his luck away from his own friends. The chances are he will accompany Bob Bledsoe when the latter goes east the first week of January.

Joe Woodman and his champion, Sam Langford, declare Stevens is one of the best little fellows they have seen in a long time, and predict a bright future for him in the ring.

The boxer's attitude threatens to turn out a featherweight pugilist who may become famous in the ring. His name is Kid Stacks—that's his fighting name—and he hails from Green Bay, where he has been a little fellow pitted against him. Stacks is a two-handed fighter, and performed here a few days ago. That battle stamps him as a coming star in the part of a wildcat and took him from start to finish. Stacks will be taken to New Orleans in January for a campaign against any little fellow who wants to tackle him.

JIMMY CALLAHAN HANDS BOOST TO COLORED PLAYERS

Chicago, Dec. 25.—Colored players have of late years been so proficient playing baseball that the public has been forced to recognize and appreciate their value. Over in Cuba the Detroit players had their troubles defeating the Cuban teams as they had been strengthened by several of the Leland Glants of this city. I am loyal to the white race, but the artist in any line of business will forgo to the front in his line.

There are several colored ball players here in Chicago, who, if they were white, would be good enough for any white ball club. Hill, the center fielder of the Leland Glants, can do anything a white player can do. He can hit, run, throw and is what could be termed a wise, heady ball player.

Petaway, their catcher, is a marvel and is one of the best throwing catchers of the great colored players.

The Chicago Glants could be made a wonderful pitcher. He is built like King Cole of the west-siders, and has as much on the ball as any high-class man.

Pettus of the Chicago Glants, were he white, could go in any league and set it on fire. Lloyd of the Leland Glants could make good. These are only a few of the great colored players, and men who would positively make good.

We have been blamed here in town for playing against colored teams. After they beat us in the all-star series three years ago, several of our friends told me personally they would never go to see those fellows play again if I played the game. I am now, following Saturday and the same fellows who weren't going to go any more occupied box seats.

We have had no more trouble with them since the training board as I am bound to come in every ball game and I must say that with a few exceptions they did not swell after their victories and get fresh. They are full of the human characteristics of their race and no end of funny situations came up in the games in playing against them.

The classy condition of affairs on the part of the players is no doubt due to the way they have been handled and managed by Frank Leland. He is crazy to win all the time and has a few times made the mistake of running out on the diamond and protesting decisions, but in business matters, especially in the good of the game is in question he has always been as square as a die.

This method of his has kept his players in check, and has put the colored players in the proud position they now occupy in the estimation of Chicago fans. They have earned the respect and admiration of the Chicago baseball public by hard and manly and clean methods, so you just give it to them.

MAKING OF THE COLLEGE A STRENUOUS BUSINESS

New York, Dec. 25.—The making of an athlete, contrary to the general consensus of opinion, is a long and arduous process, and costly as the making of the man who represents a college or a university in an athletic contest.

It is not simply a case of getting a man out and running him around a track for a few days or weeks previous to the opening of a football season.

There must be a carefully planned and consistently worked out schedule of training which includes not only actual practice for the particular set of muscles to be used, but a careful diet and clean living and also conditions which will create a proper mental state, which, as the Jeffries-Johnson fight would illustrate, is the most important feature of the whole process.

There are very few athletes who enter college who are born winners. Once in a great while a coach will pick up a "dark horse," that is, a man who can go right out on the field the first time he ever sees a pair of trunks and a football and startle the whole community by tearing off a record.

Usually it is a case of taking a man when he is a freshman and a second-year and working him all of one or two seasons, with nothing whatever to show as a result and finally having him crawl up into winning form. The good coach is the one who will look ahead and train his second team men for the future. The poor showing of Yale this year was attributed largely to the fact that the system of coaching at that school includes only careful preparation for the "varsity" men, while at Harvard the second and third teams are also given special attention. Thus at Harvard they have two or three full teams which can make nearly as good a showing as the first squad, and this has saved them many a game.

The training table is one of the most important features in getting a squad of men into shape for a contest. Too much emphasis has been laid on this part of the training, however. The real benefit in the training table lies as much in the result upon the mental condition of the player as upon the physical condition. Here they meet at a common board and there grows up a spirit of fellowship and friendliness which means much on the track, the gridiron or the diamond.

An athlete will train about as consistently on the training table as he will off, and the man who is really conscientious about the process will take good care of himself whether he eats at home or with the team. The man who does not care will be enough arousing and breaking of the training rules away from the table to make up for the good effects which it has.

The coach usually uses the common table to teach the work of the team, and it is here that either a high regard or an intense spirit of dislike will grow up on the part of the team for the man who is directing their work.

Another essential detail in the athlete making process is the rubbing and training. During track or football or baseball season the college student body is always called upon to supply a number of men who are willing to come out each afternoon and put in an hour or two rubbing and working the muscles of the contestants. It is a thankless job, and only intense college spirit that thing which everybody can easily recognize, but none can describe, will prompt one to do it.

Even Spokane Boasts of a Man Who Can Trim Johnson

Spokane, Dec. 25.—"Reddy" Brennan, who was a conspicuous figure in the fight game in the early days here, has been a lucky and heavy-weight fighter, who the veteran thinks, has the makings of a champion.

The youngster is Bill Howell, a brakeman, who has lived in and around Spokane for several years and has had several impromptu scraps in British Columbia, Alberta and the upper country.

He is twenty-one years old and weighs 192 pounds stripped. He stands about five feet ten inches tall, and is stockily built for his height, with long arms and big, strong hands.

Brennan proposes to train him in some gymnasium to be located later, and thinks the big fellow will surely make good. Howell is ambitious himself, and says he is going to win a line on himself, and then he will go after Jack Johnson.

INJURY CHEERED BY JUAREZ FANS

Juarez, Mexico, Dec. 25.—Amid the roving cheers of 4,000 persons, injury, a six to one shot, easily won the Navidad handicap, one and one-half miles, at Terrazas park today, and in doing so made a new track record for the distance by stepping it in 1:45 flat.
